

JISE

Journal of Information Systems Education

Call for Special Issue Editor

About JISE

The Journal of Information Systems Education (JISE) is an elite scholarly journal that publishes current topics of special interests to information systems (IS) educators. For more information about JISE or how to subscribe please visit <http://jise.org/>.

Want to stay up to date with JISE?

Visit our website: <http://jise.org/>

Find our page on Facebook: JISE

Follow us on Twitter: J_info_Sys_Educ

Visit LinkedIn: Journal of Information Systems

Email Editor S.E. Kruck: editor@jise.org

Read More: <http://jise.org/callforspecial.htm>

What do we need?

We are soliciting proposals for a Special Issue of JISE. Special Issues are intended to provide an important venue for collecting high quality research and papers relating to specific areas of information systems education. Previous special issues have included the following topics:

- Impacts of Web 2.0 and Virtual World Technologies in IS Education
- IS Education Assessment
- Flexible Teaching and Learning
- Systems Analysis and Design Education

What to Do if Interested:

Individuals interested in submitting a proposal and being a Guest Editor for a special issue should submit a proposal, in the form of an e-mail, to S. E. Kruck editor@jise.org that includes the following:

1. Propose a Topic. Please provide a short statement that describes why this would be a good topic for a JISE Special Issue.
2. Name the Guest Editor(s)? We encourage collaboration among two or three Guest Editors. If there is more than one Guest Editor, we encourage one of the Guest Editors to reside outside the US. Please provide a short resume for each Guest Editor that highlights IS teaching, IS education-related publications, and editorial experience (reviewing, Assistant Editor experience, etc.).
3. Describe how you would accomplish the review process. If your proposal for the Special Issue is approved, the Guest Editor(s) for the Special Issue must recruit individuals willing to help review papers submitted for the Special Issue.
4. Include a brief statement describing how you would solicit papers for the Special Issue. The Call for Papers (CFP) will appear in two issues of JISE at a minimum. The CFP will also be posted on the JISE website <http://jise.org/callforspecial.htm>.